Mundham & District Gala

Flower, Produce, Arts & Craft Show

The Gala AGM was well attended this year – thank you to all those that came and for the lively discussion that took place during the meeting as to the future organisation of the Gala and Flower Show and the engraved Flower Show Trophies were presented by the Rev May Barker.

The current Committee are seeking additional help with the planning and administration of this community event and have asked that anyone who is interested should contact them directly. You can call on 07885 278683 or 07778 010293 or email

Joanna.MundhamGalaShow@gmail.com It would be exciting to have a larger Committee in place by Christmas in order to start planning for the 2024 event early in the New Year. Without additional help, it is likely that the event will be in jeopardy.

What's Happening: Local? Wildlife!

Hedging Our Future (Jane Reeve: Full text on MWHG website here)

One often overlooked food resource in hedges is ivy. This often-maligned climber provides one of the last nectar hits for pollinating species and in September their flowers can be seen covered in butterflies, bees, wasps, and hoverflies. Going into winter these turn into hard black seeds that are often left until late winter and then eaten by blackbirds to get them through the last lean weeks before other food resources are available. Ivy in trees and hedges shades the tree trunks providing hiding places for invertebrates and forming great nesting habitat for birds and bats.

Ensuring newly planted hedges are made up of a wide range of species provides a food source for wildlife with a long fruiting season with some trees fruiting earlier, like cherries, and some later, like blackthorn. Popping in the odd fruit tree for added enhancement, and an understory of raspberries, logan berries or blueberries with create a super edible hedge.

Peninsula then please do collect the seeds. If it is hawthorn, crab apple or blackthorn then the flesh on the outside needs to be scraped off and then the pips / stones put into earth filled pots. If it is an acorn then these can go straight into a pot. Any other trees like field maple, spindle, hazel or guelder rose are an unknown so give it a shot and let us know how vou get on.

Hard To Swallow? Mick

One of my regular bird walks is an amble down Summer Lane in Pagham past the reservoir onto the Honer fields below South Mundham. There's always something to see, and today, on a balmy end of September afternoon, just before the new housing on Summer Lane was a group of around a dozen swallows not really looking like they were going anywhere in particular. At first impression they might haver been a species of Martin but careful examination revealed the classic swallows graceful glide as they hunted over an adjacent field. More ID information can be found here; BBC Nature - How to identify swallows, swifts and martins

Their easy going social chatter and relaxed demeanour made me ponder; might they not be in such a hurry to migrate this year; were they even thinking about staying? There was certainly none of the usual pre-migration directed energy and agitation I'm used to when swallows prepare for the six thousand mile trip to their winter quarters. 'Don't be daft' I told myself; 'everybody know swallows migrate at the end of September/early October and that's that!'

Apparently though, like the value of investments these days, 'past behaviour is no guarantee of future performance'. According to the BTO (British Trust for Ornithology) small numbers of swallows are overstaying in the UK; BTO - British Trust for Ornithology It may be rather a stretch but you could imagine two Summer Lane swallows in conversation something along these lines:-

First swallow. Lovely out isn't it.

Second Swallow: Certainly is; there are plenty of insects in that field over there!

First swallow. Yep, nice and juicy too and so late in the year.

Second Swallow: Just wondering... what are the insects like in South Africa?

First Swallow: About the same.

Second Swallow: Oh?

STAYCATION UK: Derbyshire Round And About.

Envious of friends going large about that great weekend they had in Biarritz, Budapest or Berlin but don't want the hassle of planning an overseas trip? Why not 'give a big-up to British'? Those great UK staycations that have everything except the aggro. Maybe you could sneak in a couple of days before or over Christmas or alternatively spring into the new year on a positive note.

Below are a few days out well worth taking; focusing on short car journeys from Chesterfield, the handsome and peaceful hidden-jewel of a market town in Derbyshire. The towns famous 'Crooked Spire' welcomes visitors up to mid-November.

Close to delightful Bakewell and only 20 minutes from Chesterfield is the stunning Chatsworth House and its world renowned garden and glasshouses. The autumn foliage makes the estate even more picturesque. Don't miss the Chatsworth House Christmas market if you're visiting later in the season. Carolyn C loves it!

The magnificent tropical water lilies were introduced to Britain by Joseph Paxton, the architect of The Crystal Palace.

Take a scenic walk or bike ride along the Chesterfield Canal towpath. The leaves changing colours create a beautiful backdrop. The Canal Trust circular walks are here. Circular walks (chesterfield-canal-trust.org.uk)

National Trusts Hardwick Hall with its beautiful gardens is 10 minutes in a car from Chesterfield. The hall is famous for its Elizabethan architecture, and the gardens are an autumnal delight.

Why not share your own discoveries with other readers? It could be a place you've stayed, a great pub or B&B, lovely walks or fun shopping.

Or just complete relaxation......Aaaaaaaahhhhhhh.

Ode to Autumn....

Season of shouts and bellowing labourers, the Boom-box with its loud and wailing howls Conspiring hugely to keep us all fed up With listening to shrieking saws and drills Building cheap houses for the newcomers Who'll flee their city and come live with us.

Who hath not longed for peace and quiet? That much desired state for us old folk. Thee sitting in thy garden chair Thy hair soft-lifted by the winnowing wind And me a-snoozing on the grass.

Where are the songs of Spring? Ay, where are they? Think not of them, thou hast the brickie singing, While hammering hard enough to frighten off Your sparrows and the redbreast sitting on a bough.

Thank all your gods that close on four o'clock The brickies leave. But comes a following morn When once again the concrete churning starts afresh

And once again 'tis time to plug the ears. Barry Shears.

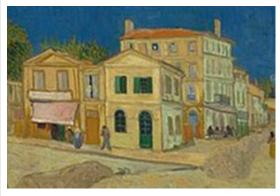

The Macmillan coffee morning held on 2nd September 2023 in the garden of Ann and Mark Wilson raised a whopping £940.15.

Well Done Ann, Mark and all who took part!

Van Gogh and Gaugin.

Earlier this year we looked at some of Vincent Van Gogh's paintings and his use of colour. Van Gogh spent much of his short life, in the south of France with another

French artist,
Paul Gauguin.
Van Gogh
(Dutch) wanted to establish an artists' colony
(as Gauguin and others had done

in the North) with Gauguin, in the south of France. Gauguin was not too keen but Vincent's brother Theo persuaded Gauguin to leave Brittany and join Vincent at the Yellow House in Arles (Gauguin was, as usual, in debt and a deal was done!) In Brittany Gauguin had immersed himself in the folk traditions of the area, and in this painting he shows a group of Breton women in traditional dress. Paul Gauguin: Vision after the Sermon. The Breton headdresses were not regularly worn by this time but they give Gauguin the opportunity to show how 'primitive' these people still were and also uses the shapes decoratively in the painting. The women have just heard a sermon about Jacob wrestling with the angel; their eyes are closed and now out in the meadow they witness a vision of the scene. He uses the Japanese motif (popular at this time) of the tree trunk dividing the picture space to separate the earthly from the heavenly. And it all takes place on a very unrealistic red meadow. Gauguin and Van Gogh as we know did not get on and their relationship boiled over when Vincent threatened Gauguin with a razor. Vincent cut a piece of his own ear and presented it to a local prostitute, but that was enough for Gauguin who left. Vincent went back to the North of France to be near his brother and it was at Auvers not long after that Vincent took his own life.

Poppy Knitting For Remembrance Day UPDATE. Louise

Are there any knitters or crocheters amongst you? Our Parish needs 5000 knitted poppies to cascade down the back wall of our church before November.

So far we have 1800 !!

If you can knit please LMK (mmmeditors@gmail.com) and I will provide you with the red wool and size 4 knitting needles.

If you can help with attaching the poppies around the beginning of November also contact me at mmmeditors@gmail.com.

Poppy Knitting Pattern

- A Wool red double knit (one ball will make a lot of poppies)
- B Wool scrap of black wool or a black button for the centre

Knitting needles size 8

Body of the Poppy

Using red wool cast on 120 stitches.

Rows 1-4 knit.

Row 5 knit 3 stitches together across the row (40 stitches)

Rows 6-9 knit

Row 10 knit 2 stitches together across the row (20 stitches)

Rows 11-12 knit, then change to black wool.

Rows 13- 14 knit

Row 15 knit 2 stitches together across the row (10 stitches)

Cut yarn leaving a tail of about 20cm

Thread the tail through wool needle and slip all the remaining stitches onto the wool tail and pull tight. Pull around into a circle and then blanket stitch (or what ever stitching you normally use) for an invisible seam.
